Will Call Strike If Scale Is Not Signed By April 1st Is Demand To Coal Operators

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 17.—The coal miners of America will serve an ultimatum on the operators, demanding that they agree before April 1st to continue the existing wage scale or face a strike, officials of the United Mine Workers declared today. The strike vote of the 1,500,000 miners undoubtedly will favor the great walkout, they declared. Every indication is that the operators will refuse to yield according to reports to leaders of the United Mine Workers at their convention here. The miners would welcome Federal intervention because they believe it would be against the operators on the ground that they violated the agreement to meet the union representatives again this spring.

LEGION STICKING FOR CASH BONUS; FOUR FOLD PLAN

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—Representatives of the American Legion today refused to accept President Harding's veiled suggestion in his letter to Congress yesterday that the cash bonus mighmt be dropped from the army compensation bill. The American Legion still favors the four-fold plan providing for an option of cash, paid up insurance, home or foreign aid and vocational training, spokesmen for the exservice men told the Ways and Means Committee.

Governor Thinks Murder Convict Innocent; Sets Him Free; Had Confessed

Waupum, Wis., Feb. 17.—John A. Johnson, who has been serving a sentence for the murder of seven year old Annie Lemberger in Madison in September, 1911, walked out of the gates of the Wisconsin State Prison a free man today. His sentence was commuted by Governor John Bland. "The truth has not been told," the Governor said, "but I am sure of one thing and that is that Johnson did not commit murder." The child disappeared from her bed and her body was found floating on Lake Winona three days later. Johnson was arrested on suspicion and confessed to the deed.

CHEAT GALLOWS BY STARVATION HOPE OF CHICAGO MAN

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 17.—Harvey W. Church, whose hanging was scheduled for today but was postponed until March 3rd, will cheat the gallows by starving himself to death. Church who has refused food for a month and who has been growing very weak, took a turn for the worse today and fever developed. "Church is slipping and may never live until the date est for the hanging," said Dr. Francis McNamara, the jail physician.

KENYON'S SEAT IN U. S. SENATE GOES TO CHAS. ROSSIN

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 17.—Charles Rossin, of Des Moines, State Chairman of the Republican party, was today named United States Senator from Iowa to succeed W. S. Kenyon. The appointment of Rossin was made by Governor Kendall this morning following receipt of the resignation of Senator Kenyon who will quit the Senate to accept the Judgeship of the Eighth Federal Circuit.

Herpicide Quartette On Strike For Pay; Rival Strike Breakers Sing

The regular meeting of the Clearfield Rotary Club was held at the Hotel Jordan last evening. The flu and cold weather interfered somewhat with the attendance, but those present enjoyed every minute of the hour and one-half spent in dining and the transaction of the business of the club.

The matter of the coming District Convention at Johnstown was the chief topic of discussion. Chairman Dean Bloom, of the "Johnstown Committee" reported on the arrangements thus for made by his committee. He stated that Pullman accommodations could be secured for $13.50 for the round trip, the party to occupy the Pullman at Johnstown during their stay in lieu of a hotel. The convention will be held March 27 to 29 and the Pullman cars used by the visitors will be parked within three blocks of the convention hall and headquarters and will be equipped with light, heat and telephone etc. Some 20 members out of those present, signified their attention of going to Johnstown accompanied by their wives and requisition will be made for two Pullman's to accommodate the local delegation.

The famous Herpicide Quartette, which refused to sing any longer at the public functions of the club without financial remuneration for their most excellent vocal efforts, resigned their assignment and suggested the appointment of a thickheaded or haired quartette to replace the Herpicides. The chair appointed Gordon, Hyde, Reeve and Phil Reed. They "executed" a piece, but we have it on the authority of Herr Professor Wilhelm Brown that they were not in it with the Herpicides, we also thought so ourselves.

Little Misses Porter and Fleck were the offering of the Entertainment Committee at this meeting and these talented little ladies again added greatly to their laurels and highly pleased the Rotes with the artistic manner in which they acquitted themselves in the several numbers in their repertoir.

Albert D. Bigler was the speaker of the evening. His subject was "The Fire Brick Industry." He gave a highly interesting ten minute talk on this subject, with which he was entirely familiar through a lifetime of study. The speaker proved to be even more of a "statistic Daschund" than was Prof. Gottschall on his recent appearance here. He delved back into the cobwebs of ancient history in his preamble an dthen showed where Clearfield county led the world in the production of fire brick. In his mass of figures and calculations Mr. Bigler said there was clay enough in Clearfield county from which to manufacture paving brick enough to pave a driveway 70 miles wide entirely around the world.

Reilly Lytle and Ralph Jordan are confined to their homes with the flu.

DOPE SELLERS AND USERS ROUNDED UP AT BRADFORD, PA.

Two Doctors, Two Drug Store Owners And 8 Addicts Thrown Into Jail After Big Raid.

IS FEDERAL CRIME

Warren, Pa., Feb. 15.—A wholesale raid of dope addicts and sellers was made in Bradford yesterday when eight men and six women were placed under arrest by Federal officers, assisted by the Bradford police.

The warrants were served on Dr. H. A. Canfield, Dr. L. D. Joseph, O. S. Carlson and Norbert Johnston, the two latter being druggists and upon Grace Davis, Bert Huggins, Harry Jifkins, Nellie Haines, Medina Burke, Fanny Bernard, Otto Jones and Mary Lenhart.

Nine of the suspected persons, the five women, and four of the men were brought to this city on the 7:31 Pennsylvania train Monday night and were given a preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner C. M. Shawkey they were held under $1,000 bail each for a hearing before Commissioner Shawkey at 10 o'clock a. m. Thursday, February 16th. In default of bail the ten alleged dope addicts were committed to the care of Sheriff W. W. Muir in the Warren County Jail. It is probable that all of the accused will be able to furnish bail today for their release Cash bail cannot be accepted in such cases brought by the federal authorities and it must be in the form of unencumbered real estate or furnished by a bonding company.

The charge against the dope addicts is for conspiracy in the violation of the Act of Congress of December 14, 1914, as amended by the Revenue Act of 1918, specifically the purchase of the dope in the from of morphine from two physicians and two druggists of Bradford, who were also placed under arrest yesterday, charged with selling the dope.

The two physicians and the two druggists were brought to this city this morning and their bail was fixed by Commissioner Shawkey at $2,500. Their hearing was fixed for Monday.

DECREASE IN BLIND IN LAST TEN YEARS CENSUS SHOWS

Improvement In Medical Knowledge And Safety Methods In Industry Show Results.

RATIO IS 1 TO 2,000

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—The Department of Commerce through the Bureau of Census, announces that 52,617 blind persons were enumerated in the census of 1920. In 1910 the number was 57,272.Although this decrease was 4,655, it is said, may be in some degree the result of a change in the method of reporting the blind, it probably indicates at least in part an actual decrease in the amount of preventable blindness, consequent upon the improvement in medical knowledge and education of the public regarding the possibility and duty of preventing blindness.

While the total number of blind are reported in the census was smaller in 1920 than in 1910, the number for whom schedules were filled out and returned in response to the canvass by mail following the census enumeration was very much larger, or 40,950 in 1920 as against 29,242 in 1910.

According to the census there are 49.8 or nearly 50 blind persons to 100,000 population, or an average of one blind person to every 2000 population.

Males predominate over females with about three blind males to about two blind females. Blindness was most common among Indians with about 200 blind for every 200,000 in the population. Negroes also have a comparatively large amount of blindness with 60 blind per 100,000 population. There were 48.3 blind per 100,000 white persons, and only 23.2 per 100,000 Chinese and Japanese. Of the geographic divisions, New England had the greatest amount of blindness, with 63.5 per 100,000 population while the least was in the West South Central States, which had but 46.1 blind per 100,000 population. Of the states New Mexico had 153.2 per 100,000 while at the opposite extreme, Wyoming had ut 15.4. The blind for 100,000 numbered 60 or more for 13 of the states between 40 and 60 for 22 of the states and less than 40 for 14 states.

STOCK DEALS THRU BUCKET SHOPS IS COSTLY PRACTICE

Poor And Thrifty Are Usually The Victims Of Fake Firms Which Deal With The Public.

LOSS IS COLOSSAL

New York, N. Y., Feb. 17.—Nearly two billion dollars is stolen annually from the pockets of the American public by confidence men and fraudulent brokerage houses, it was estimated from figures procured from the reports of bankers' associations. Most of this huge sum which unscrupulous operators collect come from the poor or from those who have accumulated a few thousand dollars.

Nineteen persons already have been indicted in New York on charges of conducting bucket shops.

Several brokerage houses, some with branches in many cities, have failed and investigation has shown that some of them have been secretly "bucketing" accounts. In Chicago authorities have uncovered a "swindle trust" which took thousands of dollars from foreign-born laborers on promises of interest payments which ran as high as 100%. The latest development in the New York war on the bucket shops is the explusion from the New York Stock Exchange of R. H MacMasters & Company.

Will You Help Feed The Hungry Among People Of This Community?

Some additional funds are needed at once to take care of emergency charity cases in and about Clearfield. A couple of weeks ago the Progress made a light appeal for funds to take care of whatever situation might arise and this appeal was answered by contributions of $32 as follows:

A Cripple $1.00
A. L. Forcey (Bigler) $2.00
Lutheran Church $16.00
Class 11,Lutheran S.S..... $8.00
M. M. Overly $5.00

More than this sum has been paid out, some seven or eight families of children havev been provided with the necessities of life just at a time when every bite of bread in their houses had been used. The Progress has gladly met every proven demand thus far and only asks its friends in this work to help it out a little in taking care of these emergencies.

The Progress wishes to make it plain that it cannot attempt to maintain any family or give it assistance more than once. Neither can it give any assistance in those cases which properly belong to the Poor District of the county. The purpose is for a fund out of which a few groceries can be hastily bought and dispatched to those isolated cases in which real hunger and privation exists. Such cases develop usually without the knowledge of near neighbore or apybody else and demand quick action.

Perjury Charges May Be Made Against Several Who Gave False Testimony

Virtually All The Testimony Given In The Walter Johnson Case False According To Court Findings Today

That a generous supply of Scopolamin, the recently discovered "truth drug" is badly needed in Clearfield county criminal court, at least, was shown in a hearing in the case of Walter Johnson, of DuBois, who was convicted on a statutory charge some two years ago, and sentenced by Judge Bell to serve from seven to twelve years in the penitentiary. Several months ago an effort was made by Johnson's attorney, J. A. Gleason to have the young man pardoned. District Attorney Arnold did not feel the ends of Justice would be served were a pardon granted in this case and refused to go along with the proposition.

When the case came before the Pardon Board a sworn statement from Johson was presented in which he admitted the crime charged, but said it was committed with the consent of the other party and was supported by an affidavit from the prosecutrix in the case apparently corobating Johnson's story.

Admit Perjury

As Johnson admitted in his affidavit that the testimony of himself and his witnesses at the trial was false the District Attorney indicted him for perjury and subornation of perjury and presented same to the Grand Jury last week. A true bill was promptly found and Johnson brought from the penitentiary today for the purpose of having him plead to the indictment.

He was placed on the stand at 10 o'clock this morning and severely grilled by Mr. Arnold, who had him testify in each specific instance or angle that histestimony at the trial was false and that of his witnesses, almost without exception; likewise.

It developed at the hearing that Carl Anderson, half brother of the prisoner, a witness in the case at the trial, had on Wednesday last sworn out a warrant for Miss Ollie Korb, the prosecutrix, charging her with perjury at the trial. Anderson was then called to the stand and under the examination of the district Attorney admitter that the testimony he had given at the trial of his half brother was false and he knew it was false when he was testifying. Before asking him any qquestion Mr. Arnold informed Anderson that anything he would say in this examination might be used against him, and told him that he might answer or refuse to answer just as he appeared to think it was to his interest to do. Anderson asked to be allowed to consult Attorney Gleason as to his rights in the case, which privilege was accorded him, after which he detailed his story as above.

Alf Johnson, another half-brother was also called and testified to the falsity of the story told by him at the trial, he also being warned as to the possible effect of any disclosures he might make. Alf. Johnson, in telling of the effort to secure a pardon for Walter, brought the names ofWilliam Tunstall and John DeVine, of DuBois, into the case, and Mr. DeVine who was present in corut was next called tothe witness stand. In answer to District Attorney Arnold's questioning DeVine said he and Tunstall were employed by William Logan to get statements from the prosecutrix and her father, Lewis Korb, who since the trial of the case had moved from near Rockton to a place in Northumberland, about eight miles from Danville. DeVine said he and Tunstall made three trips to the Korb home before they succeeded in accomplishing their object, or this service they were paid $450 of which amount Tunstall received $200. DeVine said he wrote the two statements Miss Korb signed and in reply to Mr. Arnold's question said that Turnstall was outside the house with the father, while he had the girl make her statement, Tunstall got the old man's statement. Following the securing of the signed statements DeVine said they had them reduced to typewriting by Attorney Belford at Danville and returned to the Korb home with a Justice of the Peace who took the acknowledgement of Korb and his daughter to the typed statements.

The District Attorney asked DeVine if he didn't know he had no right to engage in such business and he replied that he did not and admitted having acted in a similar capacity in two other recent criminal cases in the county.

Such wholesale perjury as was brazeenly admitted in this case, while it might have been suspected, was never heard of before in Clearfield county criminal courts, and while it doesn't look very likely that Walter Johnson will get his pardon, it does look promising for several more perjury indictments growing out of the affair.

Korb and his daughter were heard this afternoon and the final disposition of the crooked case will be given tomorrow.

Baby Scalded To Death By Kettle Of Hot Water

A two year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Fiscus, of Sigel, was scalded to death in the kitchen of the home at Siegel Saturday and buried Wednesday afternoon in the Fiscus cemetery.

The child went into the kitchen while its parents were in another part of the house and pulled a kettle of boiling water from the stove upon itself. Everything possible was done for the baby but she died Monday in terrible agony.

The little one is survived by its parents, two sisters and three brothers.

Mrs. Frank G. Harris is confined to her room with a bad case of La-Grippe and is under the care of a physician.

Officer Finds Goat, Chickens, Pet Groundhog Getting Preference over 12 yr. Old Girl in this Home

The fellow who first invented that frugal operation, which saved lumber and carpenter's bills, of keeping the pig in the parlor was the merest piker compared with Mrs. Tillie McKinney, of Bigler township, who was before the Court on complaint of neighbors that she was not giving her 12 year old daughter Mary proper care or bringing up.

When the complaint was received Juvenile Probation Officer Leavy was sent to the McKinney home to investigate conditions. What he found was detailed by him in Court Wednesday morning and was corrobated by several other witnesses including Constable Mannion of Bigler township and Mrs. McKinney herself.

Officer Leavy stated that when he went to the McKinney home he found about the dirtiest house he had ever been in. In addition to the accumulation of months of dirt the officer found a veritable menagerie within the house. To illustrate, the officer said he found a dog gamboling about the kitchen and while inspectings things there his attention was attracted by a noise upstairs and going to the second floor he found no less than eighteen chickens and three guinea hens making merry in one of the beedercoms and from the appearance of the floor they had been located there for weeks and weeks and weeks.

Bill was familiar with that old time Irish ditty which had to do with "Kaping the pig in the parlor," and while he thought what he had already seen improved somewhat on that, he was not at all prepared for what was to follow. When he came down stairs Bill decided to have a look into the bed room occupied by Mrs. McKinney and her daughter. In addition to a disordered tumbled-down bed the room contained an able bodied goat on a string, a pet groundhog in a box, another box nearby housed a tame rabbit, a second dog was snoozing comfortably on some rags in a corner, between battles with a battalion of fleas and things, while a lank, lean, hungry-looking cat peered cautiously from under the bed at the intruder.

That was enough for the Juvenile Officer and he brought mother and child to Clearfield.

After hearing the evidence Judge Bell made an order placing the girl temporarily in the care of Probation Officer Leavy and she was allowed to go back to her home neighborhood with a neighbor woman who had befriended her until her disposition is finally determined.

Troubles of the Farmer

Last week the weekly magazines had considerable to say about the farmer and his troubles. These seem serious enough and since farming is the basic industry of the country it is of the utmost importance to discover some scheme that will help the cultivators of the soil to find profit and pleasure in their work. We would be in a bad way if the man who feeds us all should strike.

In discussing "What the Farmer Can Really Do," the New Republic sheds forth a great deal of wisdom. It suggests that everybody is agreed that "our American agriculture is sick," and it remarks that "the prosperity of the farmer depends on two things; the price Europe can pay for his export surplus, and the price he has to pay for the goods he re-

Beer and Wine Find No Favor As Medicine Among Doctors

The Journel of the American Medical Association has just published the results of an inquiry, during the course of which they received expressions of opinion from 31,115 physicians in regard to the medicinal use of whiskey, beer and wine.

The report of this questionaire is a truly remarkable vindication of the Volstead law insofar as it applies to the medical profession, says Clipsheet issued by the Delta Pickett of Washington, D. C.

The Volstead law allows the prescription of whiskey, but restricts the number of such prescription that may be given in one month. A bare 51 per

WEDDINGS

THOMAS-ROWLES

A very pretty wedding was solemnized Thursday afternoon in the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Burton Thomas of Hillsdale and Miss Ruth Rowles of Hannah Street were united in marriage by Dr. E. C. Reeve, pastor of the Presbyterian church. The bridal couple were accompanied by Mr. Milliard, brother of the bride groom, and Miss Hazel Shaffner of Howard, Pa. Both these young people are well known in Clearfield and a host of friends join in wishing them all happiness in their new relationship.

CLEARFIELD COUPLE WED AT RIDGWAY

From the proud prosaic city of Clearfield to the classic confines of this modern metropolis this morning came Fred J. Minesinger and Miss Irene McGarvey to wed, says Thursday evening's Ridgway Record.

The ceremony was quietly and prettily celebrated at the altar of the Trinity Methodist Church, Rev. H. B. Davis, officiating. The bride was beautifully gowned in a simple traveling outfit. Immediately following the nuptials, Mr. and Mrs. Minesinger lunched with friends at the Hyde Hotel and boarded the B. R. & P. flyer for Pittsburgh. After a brief honeymoon, they will be at home to friends in Clearfield.

The groom is a railway conductor of the lovely old rivertown and the bride is the daughter of Mrs. David McGarvey, her late husband being an old and respected citizen and business man of that city.

A Record scribe met Mr. and Mrs. Minesinger and party descending the church steps. "How come?" queried the scribe, "this habit of Clearfield folks hieing to Ridgway to wed?"

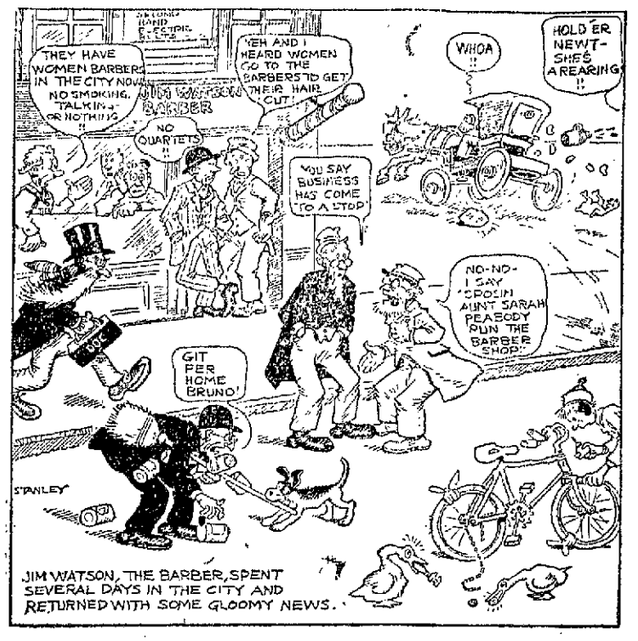

"Oh, thought maybe not so many railroad boys, rice and old shoes as in Clearfield," answered the groom.

"Hope it'll become a regular habit" declared Pastor Davis.

THE OLD HOME TOWN BY STANLEY

Isolation Sometimes Good.

Let the incommunicable objects of nature and the metaphysical isolation of man teach us independence. Let us not get too much acquainted. . . . We should meet each morning, as from foreign countries, and spending the day together, should depart at night, as into foreign countries. . . . No degree of affection need invade this religion. This is myrrh and rosemary to keep the other sweet.—Emerson.

Appreciation.

Charline likes to dine with one of the neighbors who has a large family. On returning one day from one of these trips she heaved a deep sigh and said: "My, but it must be nice to have a party fambly."

The Clouds Are Flying.

The clouds are flying fast overhead; and sharp and isolated come drops of rain, so that one thinks it must be spray. But no, it is a handful of rain. The ship swishes and sinks forward, gives a hollow thudding and rears slowly backward, along the pinkish lofty coast of Sicily that is just retreating into a bay. From the open sea comes the rain, come the long waves.—D. H. Lawrence.

Floor Bleach.

If an unfilled or undressed hardwood floor becomes grimy apply a solution of two ounces of oxalic acid dissolved in just enough water to wet it all over. Let stand 15 or 20 minutes; then rinse in cold water and wash without suds.

REFERENDUM VOTE ON SCALE WILL BE TAKEN BY MINERS

Indianapolis, Feb. 16.—Anthracite and bituminous coal workers will take a referendum within the next three weeks to decide whether or not to suspend operations April 1, if new wage contracts have not been negotiated by that date.

Just as soon as the miners national convention ratifies the report of the scale committee a call will be issued for such a vote and preparations will be made speedily, union leaders said today, to start voting. A date will be set for the casting of ballots and by four or five days later it is expected the complete returns will be in the international headquarters.

Sentiment will be overwhelming, leaders believe, for a cessation of labors on April 1.

The mine workers are preparing for most strenuous opposition to the new Kenyon bill providing tri-partite control of the coal industry.

"It is more or less like the old bill. A thinly disguised effort to legislate compulsory arbitration," said Green. Although the bill declares for collective bargaining, it sets up a court of last resort and this nullifies the declaration as to collective bargaining. The bill has nothing the miners want and they will subbornly oppose it.

Union leaders were not backward in the least in admitting today that the conference in Chicago, February 21 with the railway union men who have been invited into a defensive alliance with the miners, is political and not strictly economic.

The Chicago conference "offers wonderful opportunities," along political lines, the miners believe. Many of the leaders here admit that they do not look for an alliance with the railroaders on a plan to cause a tie-up of the railroads and coal industry April 1, but they do expect a political alliance that will assert itself in congressional and other contests.

Mrs. Jesse Sterrett and Mrs. McIlvaine of Patton were Clearfield visitors yesterday.

Spot Removing

One of the secrets of successful "spotting" or stain removal is to have plenty of pad underneath the spot to absorb the liquid that is used to remove it and to employ a circular motion working from the outside toward the center of the spot in order to keep a rim from forming Change the pad as it becomes soiled and pat the spot gently until the cleaner evaporates Certain spots with color in them such as a black grease spot come out more easily if turned face down on the pad so that the spot can be carried out without passing through the fabric

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By "Skinney"

Those of us who are inclined to poke a little fun at our Irish friends, because the constituted authorities now about to take over the reins of government of the Irish Free State, are having troubles of their own, should hesitate long enough to refresh our high school memories by rereading a little of our American history The little eruptions in Ireland may safely be styled "growing pains" of the new infant nation. Ireland is not the first new nation to have its teething troubles

We had ours The Constitution was framed to a running accompaniment of musketry practice for Shay's rebellion in staid old Massachusettts Vermont remained an Ulster of discontent, entirely independent, for four years because of her quarrel with New York, before joining the Union Seven years after the Constitution was framed and five years after government under it was begun a farm bloc in Western Pennsylvania staged an armed revolt known in the histories as the Whiskey Insurrection DeValera is perhaps no more outspoken than was the Hartford Convention

Widely circulated reports that there are 2,000,000 single persons over fifty years of age in the United States were denied by the Census Bureau

It was announced that official statistics giving the number of married, single, widowed and divorced persons enumerateed in the census of 1920 show that the actual number of single persons is only 1,440,514—804,406 men and 636,108 women And then too, we have in mind a lot of old maids who hope to have at least landed "their man" before the half century mark overtakes them.

Those booze "die hards" are certainly hard to kill A Brooklyn congressman named MacGregor got up on his hind legs in Congress the other day and in urging a law legalizing wine and beer cited the following nineteen "effects" as he styled them, to prove that Prohibition was detrimental to the nation "Ain't it awful Mabel" Just lookee

1—It has deprived the people of their inherent right of liberty

2—It has made a nation of hypocrites

3—It has made law-breaking popular

4—It has created a state of rebellion among millions of our citizens

5—It has destroyed the sacredness of law

6—It has resulted in the moral degeneration of our people

7—It has made a whiskey-drinking Nation

8—It has brought corruption in the office

9—One of the complaints against [illegible]ree III set forth in the Declaration of Independence was "He has erected a multitude of new offices and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people" Our Government is doing what our founders fought against

10—It has established a spy system in our country

11—It has debauched our youth.

12—It has made bootlegging a respectable business

13—It has given special privileges to the rich, who can afford to buy liquors to entertain their Prohibition friends

14—It has taken away the harmless glass of beer from the workingman and the light wine from those long accustomed to it

15—It has subjected legitimate business to the whims, caprices and arrogance of Government officials.

16—It has increased taxation.

17—It has brought in its train all manner of petty grafting

18—It has brought destruction of human life in its wake

19—It has weakened the very foundation of our Government.

The sad part of this whole thing is that every bootlegger in the country agrees with MacGregor But that is the only class which will

These scientific fellows have just about gone far enough They now have succeeded in perfecting what they style a "truth drug," one shot of which would make even a Republican politician tell the truth. The new dope, which is called scopolamin paralyzes a fellows' will to lie and he tells the truth unconsciously. It has been used on a couple of Texas murderers and is said to work like a charm It is administered hypodermicallly and can you imagine the "old woman" meeting you at the head of the stairs some morning about 3:30 and after giving you a Sherlock Holmes jab with "the needle," demand to know where you were all night. Entered in Post Office at Clearfield, Pa., as second class mail matter.

There most certainly is a way for the people of the Curwensville-Gramuian vicinity to get together in an agreement on the route to be taken by the connecting link of road which will make neighbors of the people of this section with the northwestern part of the state. It is a little known fact that this road when completed wil lbe a complete highway from the east to the west which bids fair to be as popular as the Lincoln Highway.

No good can come from a delay. The road cannot go both ways. Someone must lose out. Why not look at the general benefits to be derived and consider the road as a business proposition as it best serves the most people. The Progress is not familiar with the controversy and offers no suggestions as to the route. We plead only for action and prompt action.

The people of the section interested in this matter have a double reason for arriving at a quick solution of this problem. Allow it to drag and not only will it delay the construction of the road but the community will become embroiled in a heated dispute which will disrupt the even tenor of their ways and possibly affect the likelihood of unanimous action on many other matters which are of vital interest to the community at this time.

We learn of a movement on foot now to draw candidates for office into the controversy. Nothing could be more foolish att his time. Do not put the friends of your community in a position where there will be a divided interest in their election.

When the Progress came out announcing the proposed Court House improvements a fellow who thought we did not already have enough to answer for in this life said that the Progress was favoring the whole proposition. His only reason for such a silly thought was because we had published the proceedings of the Grand Jury in full and enlarged on the subject in the headlines. At one time we were told it was the policy of a newspaper to print only that which it favored and be silent on the things it did not favor. Such a sheet cannot be called a newspaper today.

The Progress does believe that something will have to be done, and very soon, with our Court House. Whether the scheme laid before the Grand Jury is the proper one we do not know. Whatever there is to it will be fully explained as news when the plans are available. Then it will be up to the voters to say what they want done.

Charge Nitrate Makers Maintain Lobby Against The Ford Proposition

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—A demand for an immediate investigation of reports that the fertilizer industry is maintaining an expensive lobby here now to defeat Henry Ford's offer for the Muscle Shoals Nitrate project was make in the Senate today by Senator McKellar, of Tennessee. He also believes Congress is making an investigation into the charges that large interests hostile to Ford are combining to make a counter bid for the nitrate plant.

Mellon Denies Charges Made By Senator Watson

Washington, D. C., Feb. 17.—Andrew D. Mellon, denied today that he was ineligible to serve as secretary of the treasury.

While declining to issue a formal reply to charges of Senator Watson, Democrat of Georgia, who declared in the senate that Mellon was serving illegally because of his vast business and financial interests. The secretary of the treasury said that he had retired as president and director of all banks in which he was interested before becoming a member of the cabinet.

Miss Anna Kujuwa of Curwensville attended the bridge at the Dimeling last evening.

BONOMI MINISTRY DOOMED TO DEFEAT IN ITALY TODAY

Rome, Italy, Feb. 17.—The vote of confidence demanded by Premier Bonomi will probably be taken in the Chamber late today as the result of the consolidation of six parties which will vote against the Government. The overthrow of the Bonomi ministry is considered inevitable. The Liberals, Pacisti, Nationalists, Agrarians, Democrats and Socialists have decided to unite against the ministry when the vote of confidence is taken.

Trouble Looms Again On Mexican Border; Troops On Alert For Invasion

El Paso, Texas, Feb. 17.—Five thousand American troops in this border territory are on the alert to guard American territory following reports of revolutionists preparing for action in Mexico. Brigadier General R. L. Howze declared American forces had been obliged to take heed of revolutionary reports which have been in circulation of late. Rebels are gathering near Chihuahua City with the intention of marching on Juarez, reports here state. General J. J. Mendez, commanding the federal troops at Juarez, sent word to revolutionists declining to join them and is preparing his garrison to repel any attack they might make.

IT'S AN ILL WIND, ETC.—

TROUBLES OF THE FARMERS

quires in his business and in his household,," The trouble is, according to the New Republic that while "all Europe is hungry," she cannot "buy because the means of payment are not forthcoming." The remedy proposed by the New Republic is "to smash the tariff wall and deflate the prices of what he buys, i nthe measure that his own prices have been deflated".

But along comes Collier's and declares that "we are now going through the transition period, from a great exporting nation to a nation needing all its agricultural products for its own consumption. The question, in a nutshell, is: Are we going to reorganize agriculture on a basis that will enable us to continue to be a self-sustaining nation or are we going to weaken ourselves by becoming dependent on other food-producing nations." Collier's thinks that no matter what helps to farming the American farmer gets he will never be freed "from the necessity of being a good farmer on his own farm." And it concludes that "the smart and sane thing for every one of us to do now is to turn an understanding ear toward the problems of our own big bread basket, the American farm." But doesn't that seem a bit indefinite?

And now the Saturday Evening Post takes the floor and quotes certain statistics to show that those who are explaining the low price of the American cereal crop by the alleged fact that Europe is too poor to buy are not familiar with the fact, which is that the export of the cereals was larger during 1921 than in the periods from 1910 to 1914, or from 1915 to 1920. In short tons the average annual reported export of cereals in the period 1910-14 was 4,214,000 tons; for 1915-20, it was 9,873,000 tons and for 1921, it was 14,097,000 tons. The same thing is true of dairy products, the exports in 1921 being 142,000 tons to only 12,000 tons in the earlier periods, although there was a falling off in 1921 as compared with the 1915-20 period. The only export showing a uniform falling off since 1914 was cotton. In commenting upon the foregoing figures the Saturday Evening Post says "Exports of cereals in 1921 was larger than the average of the war and boom years. It was larger than in any single year. Heavy exports, especially of bread grains, has continued since the first of last July. The volume of exports of cereals has been more than three times as large as in the years before the war. If this represents exports on a collapsed demand, what would the predicated good demand have been?"

According to The Nation the so-called farmer's bloc is neither so radical nor so powerful as certain New York editors fear. But it is able to note what it regards as three hopeful tendencies,' "1. A growing recognition among farmers that their own prosperity depends upon the restoration of Europe." "2. American farmers are learning how to cooperate." "3. American farmers are thinking for themselves. They will not vote like sheep and they will not accept fluctuations in the value of money and other social maladjustments as ordained of God. And this is progress."

"Under the title "A Defense of the federal Reserve System," The Outlook, contains a valued and informing editorial, based on a speech by Senator Carter Glass in explanation of the federal reserve banking system, and published in the Congressional Record of January 24. We do not have space now to make any extended comment upon this address.. Suffice it to say that Senator Glass shows that billions of dollars have been loaned to the farmers of the United States by these bankers of the United States by these banks and if more has not been loaned it is the fault of timid bankers who are not members of the federal reserve system.

We conclude our symposium with the following sage observation from the Country Gentleman: "While a lot of folks are still sitting around listening for the crash of more empires the farmer has taken a hitch in his trousers, moistened his palms in the usual way and is sawing wood. Which has more than passing national significance."—Altoona Tribune.

cent of these 31,115 physicians bepresenting every state in the Union and District of Columbia, believe that whiskey should be available for medical purposes, and 58 per cent. of those replying believe that the number of such prescriptions should be restricted.

On the other hand Congress in its prohibition legislation has refused to allow the prescription of beer and wine and in this particular also medical opinion over the country supports congress for only 26 per cent of those replying regard beer as a necessary therapeutic agent and the favorable vote on wine was only 32 per cent.

Twelve per cent of the physicians giving their decisions favor the absolute prohibition of the prescribing of whiskey and there was a very decided and general opinion among the doctors that the prohibition law has not caused sufferings by its restrictions upon the medical profession. Seventy-eight per cent of the physicians replying declared that they had not observed any such suffering in their practice.

Tabulated by state the vote shows nineteen states and the District of Columbia favoring the use of whiskey and twenty nine states opposed to it, while every single state returned a negative vote against beer and wine.

The southern states voted 11 to 5 against whiskey as medicine, The estern states ere even more dry in their sentiment, voting 15 to 4 against while the east with its masses of assimilated immigration, voted 10 to 3 in favor of whiskey. All the states comprising the extreme eastern group including New Jersey, New York and theNew England states, favor the use of whiskey as medicine, while the rural districts were opposed, to it.

One physician from Jersey City wrote: "I have been in practice forty five years. During all that time I have seen the profession change in its attitude toward alcohol, and feel myself that there is no diseased condition but that can be as well treated ithout it as with it. The physician who likes his "toddy" likes to give it. The man who does not care for it can treat efficiently without it."

This one came from Oregon: "I live in a dry state and so have no opportunity to prescribe alcoholic liquors even had I wished to do so. However I am not conscious of any lack of efficient therapeutic agents, by reason of Oregon's dryness. In my opinion the only need for alcohol is when a rapidly diffusible stimulant is called for, and even then I believe every indication can be met by a suitable hypodermic injection."

The careless use of this drug by physicians gives the laity the idea that it is a useful one, thereby perpetuating an ancient error, says a doctor from South Carolina.

This Arizona physician speaks well: "Since Arizona has gone dry the working man's family is much better off and the doctor's bills are much more promptly paid. While there is plenty of bootleg it is not nearly so bad as when the state was wet. If prescribed whiskey, wine or beer was permitted in this state, I would be compelled to take out a permit in order to keep my friends and thus retain their legitimate practice. This would of course class me as a second rate bar tender, which I have no desire to be."

The following was sent from Delaware: "I am not a prohibitionist. Alcoholic liquors are bad enough to drink; worse for medicinal purposes. why should you want to prescribe alcohol when you have access to aromatic spirits of ammonia, strychnin, etc.?"

From Ohio: "I am not a prohibitionist, and never refused a drink if I cared to, but my opinion is that liquor is hard enough on a well man and it is absolutely foolish to give it to a sick one."

From Ohio also: "After many years in the practice of medicine I have decided that the transient effect of alcoholic liquors in disease is a detriment rather than a benefit."

Oldest Man-Made Forest.

The oldest living forest planted by man is said to be that set out by St. Francis and his monks in the city of Florence, Italy. It was started in 1224 and since that time has been under the care of some supervisor interested in forestry. The forest is of silver fir and beech.

Free Demonstration of A B C Super Electric Laundress

By an Experienced Factory Demonstrator

Come and see this wonderful machine that will take the hard work out of your wash day. Everything from fine, dainty laces to heavy wool blankets can be handled with easy success.

MODEL 66E ILLUSTRATED, NOW $150.00

Full cabinet, heavy tin lined copper tub, cabinet, grey enameled.

The cylinder of the "A B C" Super-Electric makes one complete revolution—and then reverses. This forces the sudsy waters through the soiled clothes 44 times a minute. The reversal is accomplished by a patented springless segment gear and pitman, so smoothly that a pencil will stand on end upon the lid without toppling over, so quiet that the ear detects only the soft flop of the clothes and the slosh of the water.

These are unfailing signs of unusual sturdiness and rare simplicity of construction, and a pledge that the "A B C" will render long and faithful service.

Let us arrange a demonstration that will in no way obligate you to buy. We feel certain that you will order an "A B C" after seeing how satisfactorily it does your washing.

We have six models for you to choose from.

est and curiosity.

After three rubbers the game ended suddenly; Richard said he had some letters to write, and was keeping Fox waiting in the library; Anthony scribbled a check, said brief and unfriendly good-nights; Isabelle merely raised passionate dark eyes to his. She was languidly gathering in her spoils when the lights of his car flashed yellow on the drive and he was gone.

Immediately afterward Richard Carter said good-night to his mother and wife, and went in to his study. Madame Carter followed him in, and went upstairs, but Isabelle sat on moodily shuffling and reshuffling the cards, in the bright soft light of the terrace lamps.

"Wait a minute, Harriet," she said, briefly, and Harriet obediently loitered But Isabelle seemed to have nothing to say. Her eyes were on the cards, her beautiful breast, exposed in the low-cut silver gown, rose and fell stormily, and Harriet saw that she was biting her full under lip, as if anger seethed strong within her.

"Come upstairs to my room; I want to speak to you!" Isabelle said, suddenly. Harriet followed her upstairs, and they entered the beautiful boudoir together. Here Isabelle dropped into a chair and stared dully ahead of her a queen of tragedy.

Germaine came forward, evidently more accustomed to this mood than Harriet was. Like a flash the high-heeled shoes, the silver gown, and the brocaded stays were whisked away, and a cool, loose silk robe enveloped Isabelle, and she took a deep, cretonned chair by the window. The lights were lowered, Isabelle nodded Harriet to the opposite chair.

"I ask you," she said, with a great breath of anger restrained, "I ask you if any woman in the world could stand it! You saw the way Mr. Carter acted. You saw him make me ridiculous—make a fool of me! The boy will never come to the house again."

"Oh, I don't think that!" Harriet said, in honesty.

"Mr. Carter stalked in upon us, at dinner—" his wife said, broodingly. She fell into thought, and suddenly burst out, "Harriet, my heart aches for that boy! My God—my God—what have I done to him?"

She rested her white full arms on the dressing table, and covered her face with her hands. Harriet saw the frail silk of the dressing gown stir with her sudden dry sobbing.

"My God—if I could cry!" Isabelle said, turning. And Harriet realized, with a shock, that she was not acting. "Mr. Carter only sees what I see," she added, "that it must stop. But I am afraid it will kill him. He isn't like other men. He—" She opened a drawer, fumbled therein. "Read that!" she said.

Harriet took the sheet of paper, pressed it open.

"My heart'," she read, in Tony Pope's handwriting. "'I will go away from you if I must But it will be further than India, Isabelle, further than Rio or Alaska. While we two live, I must see you sometimes Perhaps outside the world there is a place big enough for me to forget you'"

"Now—!" said Isabelle, rising and beginning restlessly to walk the floor. "Now, what shall I do? Send him away to his death, or risk Mr. Carter's insulting him again, as he did tonight! Anthony Pope means it, Harriet—I know him well enough for that."

She fell silent. Germaine appeared with a tray, and began to loosen and brush the dark hair, and Isabelle went automatically to the business of creaming and rubbing, still shaken but every minute more mistress of herself. With the thick, dark switch gone, Harriet was almost shocked by the change in the severely exposed forehead and face. Isabelle looked fully her age now, more than her age.

"Well!" said the mistress, somber-eyed still, and with a still heaving breast. "There was something else, Harriet— Gently, please, Germaine, my head aches frightfully. Oh, Harriet, will you see what this Blondin man wants with Nina? She tells me he suggested some sort of summer party in his roof garden; I don't know quite what it is. But her heart is set on it. They seem to understand each other—I always felt that when Nina's affairs did begin, she would pick out freaks like this! Don't—" Germaine had gone to the bathroom for a hot towel, and Isabelle dropped her voice, almost affectionately—"don't worry about this little scene, Harriet. It will be quite all right!"

"Oh, surely!" The companion's voice was light and cheerful; she went upstairs only pleasantly excited and thrilled. And at the breakfast table next morning Harriet could show the head of the house the same bright assurance Richard had come down stairs early, and they had their coffee alone.

"Nina?" asked her father.

"She comes back today," Harriet said. "Mrs. Carter is going to have her masseuse, so she won't be down She asked you to remember that you are dining at the Jays' tomorrow There's to be tennis at about four"

"Finals," he said, nodding, and went out to his car apparently well pleased with himself and his life. Harriet started for the Hawkes' with a philosophic reflection or two as to the ephemeral quality of married quarrels.

She brought Nina back at noon, a garrulous and complacent Nina, who could pity the elder Hawkes as girls who "never had admirers" When they reached the driveway of Crownlands, Harriet recognized the car that was already there, and said to herself that Anthony Pope would join them for luncheon. But just as she and Nina were about to enter the cool, wide, dark doorway, Anthony himself passed them. He was almost running, and apparently did not see them. He ran down the shallow steps and sprang into his car, which scattered a spray of gravel as he jerked it madly about, and was gone before she and Nina had ended their look of surprise. Harriet went slowly upstairs, with a dim foreboding fur back in her heart.

At about three, when Harriet and Nina were idling on the shady terrace, with the hound, the new magazines, and their books, Hansen brought one of the small closed cars to the side door. Five minutes later Isabelle, in a thin white coat, a veiled white hat, and with a gorgeous white-furred wrap over her arm, came out. Germaine was with her, carrying two shiny black suitcases. Isabelle, Harriet thought, looked superbly handsome, but Germaine had evidently been scolded, and had red eyes.

Isabelle came over to give her daughter a farewell kiss

"Mrs. Webb has telephoned for me, ducky. Your father isn't coming home tonight, but have a happy time with Miss Harriet, and I'll be back in a day or two. Good-by, both of you. All right, Hansen!"

They swept away, leaving Harriet with a strange sense of nervousness and suspense. The summer air seemed charged with menace, and the silence that followed the noise of the car oddly ominous.

Madame Carter was on the terrace when they came back at five from an idle trip to the club, reporting that her son had just returned unexpectedly from the city, and had gone in to change for golf.

Nothing alarming here, yet Harriet experienced a sick thrill of apprehension. Something abnormal seemed to be the matter with them all this afternoon!

"Did you call me, Mr. Carter?" She hardly knew her own voice, as he came down the three broad steps from the house. Her hands felt cold, and she was trembling

"Do you happen to know where Hansen is, Miss Field?"

"Driving Mrs Carter to the Webbs' at Great Barrington," the girl answered, readily. "Mrs. Carter left in a hurry. She did not expect you tonight. Hansen ought to be back at about seven, I should think—"

He was not listening to her; abruptly left her. When Harriet went into the house she saw nothing of him. She made her usual little round, spoke briefly to a maid about some fallen daisy petals, consulted with the housekeeper as to the new cretonne covers. A man was to come and measure those covers this very afternoon—perhaps this was he, modestly waiting at the side door.

But no, this man briefly and simply asked to be shown to Mr. Carter, remarking that he was expected. He disappeared into the library; Harriet saw no more of him for an hour, when he silently appeared beside her, and asked to see the chauffeur Hansen as soon as he came.

Richard brought the strange man to the dinner table; but there was nothing in that to make the dinner so unnatural. To be sure Richard ate little, and spoke hardly at all; but this Mr. Williams was quite entertaining, and the old lady in good spirits

At eight Hansen was back, presenting himself in his dusty road-coat; Mr. Carter immediately drew him with Williams into the library. Nina loitered up to bed, but the old lady and Harriet remained downstairs. They did not like, but they sometimes amused, each other. Suddenly came the summons: would Miss Field please step into the library?

Hansen was going out as she came in; Richard was at the big flat-topped desk the man Williams standing somewhat in shadow. Harriet's heart leaped; they were going to ask her about Royal.

"Just a moment, Miss Field," Richard said "Will you sit down?" And as Harriet, looking at him in frightened curiosity, did so, he began quietly: "We are in some trouble here, Miss Field. I hardly know how to tell you what we fear. Did you notice anything strange about—Mrs. Carter's—manner today?"

"I thought I did," Harriet admitted

"Did you think of any reason for it?"

Harriet gave the stranger a glance that made him an eavesdropper.

"I fancied that it was connected with—with what distressed her last night, Mr. Carter."

"You may speak before Mr. Williams," Richard said He looked down; was silent "I asked him to help me," he added, slowly "Was young Mr. Pope here today?"

Harriet Gave the Stranger a Glance That Made Him An Eavesdropper.

"This morning, I don't know how long," Harriet said, with a great light, or darkness, breaking in upon her mind, "he was leaving when Nina and I came home"

"Do you know who took the telephone call from Mrs Webb?"

"No, because nobody did. No person named Webb called from Great Barrington, or anywhere else, today," said Williams, breaking in decidedly, his voice a contrast to Richard's hesitating tones. "As a matter of fact, Hansen didn't drive to Great Barrington. Two miles from your gate here, Mrs. Carter gave him other directions."

"What directions?" Harriet asked, antagonized by his manner, and feeling her cheeks get red. The man evidently had small respect for womanhood.

"He drove to New London," Richard supplied. "Pope's yacht is there."

His manner was very quiet, he spoke almost wearily, but Harriet felt as if a cannon had exploded in the study.

"I've had New London on the wire," said Mr. Williams. "Mr Pope had been getting ready for a cruise. The chances are that they have already weighed anchor."

"On the other hand," Richard said, glancing at his watch, "we have an excellent prospect of finding them there. I was not supposed to come home until tomorrow night. I found Mrs. Carter's message at five, twenty-four hours earlier than she expected me to. Williams may be mistaken, of course," he finished, with a glance at the detective

"Not likely!" said Williams, with a modest shrug.

"However, even if he is right," Richard resumed, "the chances are that they are still there, and if they are, I will bring—my wife back with me tonight. Meanwhile, I leave the house in your care, Miss Field. I needn't tell you that my mother and Nina must be kept absolutely ignorant of what we suspect. You'll know what to tell them, in case I should be longer away. If our calculations are wrong, there's no telling where I may follow Mrs. Carter. I leave this end of things to you!"

"I'm sorrier than I can say," she said, huskily.

"I know you are! It's—" Richard passed his hand over his forehead—"it's utter madness, of course. But, please God, we can keep it all hushed up. She has Germaine with her; Hansen I can trust. We're off now, Miss Field. I'll keep you informed if I can."

Harriet went back to the drawing room with her heart big with pride. He had mentioned Hansen and Germaine, but he knew that he could trust her! The event was sensational enough. But back of the excitement lay the joy of being needed and being trusted.

CHAPTER VII.

That Isabelle's madness would run its full gamut did not occur to Harriet until the next day. Then, as the serene hours moved by, and there was no word and no sign from Richard, the possibilities began to suggest themselves. It seemed to her incredible that any woman would risk all that Isabelle had for the sake of a fiery boy's first love, and yet, on the other hand, there was the memory of Isabelle's suffering two nights ago, and here were the amazing facts to prove it.

It was for few women to enjoy the popularity Isabelle had known. But any woman might run away with a rich admirer. Harriet's admiration for the cleverness with which Isabelle conducted this pretty playing with fire disappeared, and in its place came the sharp conviction that old-fashioned women like Linda had some justification, after all; it was "dangerous," it did "lead to sin," it could indeed happen once too often."

Harriet felt her own lapsing morality regaining its standard Just now, when Nina most needed her mother, when Richard was struggling with difficult business conditions, when Ward was engaged--

She interrupted her thoughts here, and tried to make herself feel like a woman engaged to be married. Somehow the fact persisted in baffling her There was an unreality about it that prevented her from tasting the full sweet. Engaged—to a rich man, and a rich man's son. Well, perhaps when Ward came back, it would seem more believable.

She had been standing at one of the hall windows, a window deep set in the brick wall, and commanding through elms and beeches the path to the tennis court. Hands pressed her eyes tight, she came back to the present moment with a start Ward Carter was behind her. He laughed at her confusion, and they sat down on the window seat together Yes, he was going back to the Bellamy's, and so was Blondin, but they had both come in just for lunch and the drive.

Instantly he brought reassurance to her. Ward was such a dear! Of course she loved him.

"But you weren't a very good boy last night!" she said. Their hands were locked; but she had shaken a negative when he would have kissed her.

"Rotten!" he confessed, easily. "I played poker, too. No man ought to do that when he's edged. Sorry—sorry—sorry. Listen. When we're married it's all off. No smoking, drinking, gambling, wine, women, or song, what?"

SHAWVILLE

A pleasant surprise party was given in honor of the seventeenth birthday of Miss Edith Buck last Wednesday evening at the parsonage. Thirty guests came to honor the young lady and an enjoyable evening was spent in the playing of innocent christian games. At a late hour refreshments were served, including a beautiful and appetising birthday cake with seventeen candles. With one puff the honored guest extinguished all the candles. The guests departed at a late hour wishing the young lady many happy returns of the day.

POPULAR PHILIPSBURG FIREMAN DIES

It was with shocked pained surprise that the people of Philipsburg learned of the death of Homer E. Sunderland, which occurred at the home of his aunt, Mrs. E. P. McCloskey, on Second street, at 1:40 this (Thursday) morning, from an attack of pneumonia. He had been ill for a week, and though it was known he was sick, the impression prevailed that he was getting along nicely.

Mr. Sunderland was prominent in the affairs of the Reliance Fire Company and a regular and consistent Methodist.

The body will be taken to Trinity Methodist church at 7:45 on Saturday morning and services, conducted by Rev. R. Skyles Oyler, the pastor, held at 8 o'clock. The body will then be taken to Sunbury and burial made in the Pompert Manor cemetery at 10 o'clock on Monday.

Your Duty Is Done.

What I must do, is all that concerns me, not what the people think. This rule, equally arduous in actual and in intellectual life, may serve for the whole distinction between greatness and meanness. It is the hardest because you will always find those who think they know what is your duty better than you know it. It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after your own; but the great man is he who in the midst of the crowd keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.—Emerson.

Remember, Troubles Have Uses.

"Don't tell a man to forgit his troubles," said Uncle Eben. "If he goes ahead an' forgits 'em, you'll turn around an' say dey serves him right fob bein' so careless."

TONIGHT

Reynoldsville High will be the attraction at the high school gym this evening in the seventh N. W. P. I. A. league contest.

Reynoldsville has a fine team, the visiting five having a reputation for making sensational long distance shots.

The game will start promptly at 8:15 and a large crowd is expected, so the fans who wish good seats should be on hand early.

"Sugar" From Old Linen.

A London periodical says that in pre-war days the Germans used to make quite a lot of "sugar" by treating old linen with sulphuric acid, which turned it into dextrine. It was then washed with lime water and treated with more acid, until it crystallized into glucose.

Commissioner Buller Hunting Locations For Additional Hatcheries

Harrisburg, Pa., Feb. 15.—Members of the State Fisheries Commission have authorized Fish Commissioner Nathan R. Buller to make inspections of locations suggested to the commission for the establishment of new hatcheries, although for the present the six hatchery establishments will be completed along the lines determined some time ago.

Construction of new hatcheries and other work will depend largely upon the revenue to be derived from the license money of the new fisherman's license passed by the last session of the legislature and now in effect. Owing to the weather conditions and the season of year the receipts of these licenses have been small and the department may be compelled to restrict some of its work until the approach of the trout fishing season brings in an increase in the sales of fishing licenses.

Commissioner Buller has pointed out that the hatcheries are well filled with fish but no distribution will be made until weather conditions permit in the spring. It is also planned to plant many fish in the fall, the Commissioner announced.

Certainly Not!

Mrs. Ralph Good of Patton spent yesterday with her mother Mrs. H. F. Bigler and attended the Presbyterian Missionary Luncheon.

Metaphysics.

The second great discovery of the Greek thinkers was metaphysics. Nowadays metaphysics is revered by some as our noblest effort to reach the highest truth, and scorned by others as the silliest of wild goose chases. I am inclined to rate it, like smoking, as a highly gratifying indulgence to those who like it, and as indulgences go, relatively innocent.—Prof. J. H. Robinson, in "Mind in the Making."

When Orange Was Banned.

There was a time when feeling in Holland was so against the Stadtholder that the sale of oranges and carrots was forbidden because orange was the color of the hated family. The Hollanders, however, finally came to tolerate the color.

Couldn't Stand for That.

Billy did chores for the women of the neighborhood. In his eagerness to get out to play he had grown careless and several of the women had jacked him up a little. One day he did not go to his work and his father, thinking he had forgotten, reminded him of the fact, when he said: "Have quit, dad; couldn't stand it; I was getting henpecked."

Birthplace and Parents of Pope

Pope Pius XI was born in the modest home shown above. That was May 31, 1857, at Desio, outside Milan. Francesco Ratti, his father, was a weaver. His mother was Teresa Galli Ratti. Both parents are now dead.

W. C. T. U. Had Fine Speaker Here Yesterday

According to announcement a special meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held at the home of Mrs. Chorpenning yesterday afternoon with Miss Rebecca Naomi Rhoads, National Superintendent of Welfare in the W. C. T. U., the speaker of the occasion. Miss Rhoad's talk was exceedingly interesting, as the Welfare Superintendent has a wide field to draw from, and it is not saying too much to say that Miss Rhoads is exactly the woman for the place; fills it most admirably. Thus her talk diverged in many directions, not forgetting to advise the members to be registered and then just as certainly, to go to the Primary in May.

While attending the San Francisco Convention, Miss Rhoads in pursuance of her Welfare Work, was instrumental in the removal of the infamous "Barbary Coast" from China Town, in that city, which had been the greatest menace for more than half a century and had thus far baffled the efforts of the Christian citizenship.

At the close of Miss Rhoads talk an enjoyable social time took place, refreshments were served, thus ending a pleasant afternoon.

And That's the Truth.

"De man dat's most willin' to stir up trouble," said Uncle Eben, "is generally de one dat's least able to lock out foh biss'f when it arrives."

HEALTH THE SECRET OF ATTRACTION

Women of today depend a good deal upon the modern modiste and a knowledge of the cosmetic art to make them attractive. Too often there exists beneath it all a suffering woman whose nervous laugh or forced smile covers a pang of agony caused by some feminine ill. To such a woman Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will bring health and a happy relief from her suffering, that will make her far more attractive than costly gowns and cosmetics.

For nearly fifty years American women have relied upon this root and herb medicine to relieve their ailments

Air-Carrying Spider.

The water spider (Argyroneta aquatica), though an air-breathing creature, spends nearly its whole existence in the water. It is enabled to breathe beneath the surface by means of a bubble of air, retained in the long hairs that cover the spider's abdomen. It also weaves a dome-shaped nest under water, attached to some plant, and fills it with air, which the spider carries down from the surface, a bubble at a time.
